Re: Returning From Extended Sick Leave or Long-Term Disability

Individuals returning from extended sick leave or long-term disability, whose position has been filled permanently, have not been laid off. They are not entitled to displacement options as presented in Article 11.

The following procedure will be implemented should these individuals return from sick leave:

- (a) Should the incumbent filling their former position be junior in seniority, they will be displaced.
- (b) Should the incumbent filling their former position be senior with respect to seniority, the Division will identify a position in the same classification with the same hours and similar working conditions (i.e.: day, afternoon or evening shift).
- (c) Should the above options not be available, the Division will identify a position in the same classification with fewer hours (that comes closest to meeting the original hours) and similar working conditions.
- (d) Should the Division be unable to place the individual returning from sick leave in the same classification, they will identify a position in a lower classification with the same hours if available, or, fewer hours (that comes closest to meeting the original hours) with similar working conditions.

The individual returning from sick leave will displace the incumbent in the position identified by the Division. This will trigger the layoff process for the incumbent so displaced by the individual returning from sick leave.

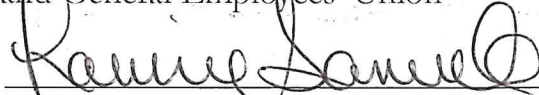

The premise of the above process is that individuals returning from extended sick leave or long-term disability will not improve their situation to the detriment of other employees.
